

Present help in time of need....

There is never a good time to be in a disaster. To know that help is on the way can bring a feeling of relief to those affected by a disaster. Our goal is to be able to respond quickly and promptly when called upon. There is no greater virtue than being able to help those who are less fortunate. Giving yourself to help others in need.

Disaster Response

No one wants to be in a disaster. Most people don't think they ever will. Yet chances are everyone at least once in their lifetime will. How do you begin to put your life back together? Many individuals are over-whelmed by the magnitude of what has to be done to get started. If people can give of their time and resources disaster won't turn into catastrophe.

There is no one that can make it like it never happened but we all can make it easier for those that are having to live through it. All of our services are at no cost. Our resources are provided by individual gifts and other organizations that contribute to the department.

Responding to a disaster is not just show up and go to work. We encourage our volunteers and leaders to undergo training and study techniques that will help in the field. When we arrive at the site we bring tools and equipment in two self-contained trailers.

Volunteers

The most important element in response to a disaster are the volunteers. Those individuals that give of their time and resources to and abilities. At the site of a disaster the tasks that need to be performed goes from hands on work in the field to the behind the scene paper work. Each facet of the duties assigned are crucial for the job to be done well.

What We Do

We provide help for the victims at the site of a disaster. After some disaster has happened individuals are left with the task of reclaiming their lives and possessions. We provide cleanup, debris removal, tree extraction help those that have been traumatized by a life changing disaster. Not everyone has the ability or opportunity to respond to the need. Those that do bring with them their own individual talents and even help people to move their possessions. We also do our best to give victims comfort and encouragement to know that things will be better. We work with local and federal departments to give the community the best possible assistance we can.

Our motto "People Helping People in Crisis" that's what we are all about!
